			continued....who related that Infinity Ship Security
			"Mario" was giving him a hard time.
			4- After receiving approx. 3 phone calls from Off.
			KAPAHULEHUA, this writer requested to have "Mario" speak to me on the telephone.
			5- Mario related that the lines for the people returning back to the ship was very long. I informed Mario that this is a normal standard when you have 2 cruise ships in port.
			That this is nothing new, and we've been doing this for a number of years and nothing has changed, Mario tried to interrupt while I attempted to explain to him our FSP at Lah. Harbor. I asked him, when you travel by airplane and you stand in the long lines at the airport, do you tell the security to change the lines around because things are going slow?
			6- Further explained to Mario, that as the FSO, we dictate the final outcome of what happens at the Lah. Hbr., because if something goes wrong, we're responsible, and not him. He can decide the procedures of what occurs on their cruise ship, but not on the dock.
			7-Mario ended his conversation relating that everything is okay now.
			8-On 8-28-06, spoke to Harbor Master Hal Silva, who related that the tendering for the Infinity was very slow, and that the delay was not because of the FSP, but because the Infinity passengers were carrying a lot of carry on items, which had to be searched. He did make concessions for the 2 tenders, however they had to wait because of heavy commercial vessel traffic.
